Customer Relationship Summary of JDL Securities Corporation

Dated February 29, 2024

Item 1. Introduction

JDL Securities Corporation ("JDLS") is registered with the Securities and Exchange Commission ("SEC") as a broker/dealer. JDLS is not an investment adviser; it has an affiliated investment adviser that will file its own Customer Relationship Summary. Essentially, broker/dealers charge for transactions, and any advice which may be provided by broker/dealers incidental to the transaction is not charged. Investment advisers charge for advice rather than the transactions. Brokerage and investment advisory services and fees differ, and it is important for you to understand these differences. Free and simple tools are available to research firms and financial professionals at www.Investor.gov/CRS, which also provides educational materials about broker/dealers, investment advisers, and investing.

Item 2. What investment services and advice can you provide me?

We buy and sell securities and recommend such transactions to retail investors. We offer brokerage services for buying and selling mutual funds. JDLS solicits transactions for you based upon what we determine is suitable for you and otherwise in your best interest. We consider your investment objectives, time horizon, risk tolerance, liquidity needs, tax bracket and other considerations that you shared with our registered representatives ("RRs"). Material limitations of JDLS' brokerage service include (i) the recommendations are generally based upon a qualitative assessment and fundamental analysis, and so the qualitative nature of such services may not be optimal in practice, (ii) the products are generally limited to mutual funds and (iii) RR's judgment may, as with all investments, result in loss of your principal amount invested.

We must act in your best interest and not place our interests ahead of yours when we recommend an investment or an investment strategy involving securities. When we provide any service to you, we must treat you fairly and comply with a number of specific obligations. We do not engage in ongoing account monitoring services.

JDLS does not exercise discretionary authority over your brokerage account. There is no account minimum balance/valuation required to open an account; however, on a case-by-case basis, JDLS reserves the right to refuse to open an account or to close an account at its discretion.

To facilitate a greater understanding of our services, you could ask your financial professional questions such as: (1) Given my financial situation, should I choose a brokerage service? Why or why not?; (2) How will you choose investments to recommend to me?; (3) What is your relevant experience, including your licenses, education and other qualifications? What do these qualifications mean?

Item 3. Fees, Costs, Conflicts and Standard of Conduct

What fees will I pay?

The commissions and fees/costs for retail investors with a brokerage account consist of: A-shares with a maximum dealer commission of 5.75% (and scales down to 0% as breakpoints are reached); F2-shares/ADV-shares/I-shares (if our affiliated investment adviser has a contract with you for service); C-shares, which have a trailing commission of a specified percent each year (generally 1%); R-shares in retirement plan accounts with a maximum dealer commission of 1% (depending on the R-share program selected by the employer); and 12b-1 fees, which are trailing commissions paid by the mutual fund company and are disclosed in the mutual fund prospectus.

The commissions you pay are based on the specific transaction and not the value of your account. Such a transaction-based fee creates a conflict of interest in the sense that RRs have an incentive to recommend transactions to you to make more money.

Our fees do not include other transaction fees and other related costs and expenses. Mutual funds and money market funds also charge internal management fees. You may also incur certain account charges imposed by mutual fund transfer agents and custodians, including capital gains taxes on undistributed mutual fund profits, transfer taxes, wire transfer and electronic fund fees, and other fees and taxes.

Customer Relationship Summary of JDL Securities Corporation; Dated February 29, 2024

You will pay commissions and fees/costs whether you make or lose money on your investments. Commissions and fees/costs will reduce any amount of money you make on your investments over time. Please make sure you understand what fees and costs you are paying.

For additional information, please see the prospectus of each mutual fund and/or college savings account we have recommended to you. Please also refer to our Breakpoint disclosure.

To facilitate a greater understanding of our services, you could ask your financial professional questions such as: (1) Help me understand how these fees and costs might affect my investments; (2) If I give you $10,000 to invest, how much will go to fees and costs, and how much will be invested for me?

What are your legal obligations to me when providing recommendations? How else does your firm make money and what conflicts of interest do you have?

When we provide you with a recommendation, we have to act in your best interest and not put our interest ahead of yours. At the same time, the way we make money creates some conflicts with your interests. You should understand and ask us about these conflicts because they can affect the recommendations we provide you. Here are some examples to help you understand what this means: (i) larger accounts may create larger conflicts of interest because when compensation is based upon commissions, RRs have a greater incentive to recommend larger transactions, resulting in greater commissions, (ii) JDLS has an incentive to encourage you to trade often in order to generate more commissions in your account, and (iii) some JDLS RRs have a conflict of interest because they are registered as insurance agents of an insurance agency and so they will recommend buying insurance and would therefore receive a commission for those insurance transactions. Investing involves risk of loss of principal invested.

To facilitate a greater understanding of our services, you could ask your financial professional questions such as: How might your conflicts of interest affect me, and how will you address them?

How do your financial professionals make money?

JDLS's RRs are employees and are provided payment of 25%, 50% or 60% of the commissions they earn for JDLS, based on their annual gross earnings. Some RRs of JDLS may also receive covered travel expenses of up to $1,500 for attending an annual education conference sponsored by a mutual fund company. Such compensation is paid by American Funds when they invite our RR to a conference. American Funds directly pays for the travel, hotel, food, etc. American Funds determines who to invite based on commissions generated.

This compensation structure creates an incentive and a conflict of interest to generate more transactions and earn more commissions for JDLS.

Item 4. Do you or your financial professionals have legal or disciplinary history?

Yes. JDLS has a disciplinary history. JDLS' financial professionals do not have a disciplinary history. Visit www.investor.gov/CRS for a free and simple search tool to research us and our financial professionals.

To facilitate a greater understanding of our services, you could ask your financial professional questions such as (1) As a financial professional, do you have any disciplinary history?; (2) For what type of conduct?

Item 5. Additional Information

For additional information about our services, or if you would like additional, up-to-date information or a copy of this disclosure, please call Kathe Espinili at (949) 752-5206 for such matters, as well as compliance questions, or call Rob Knutsen at (949) 752-5206 for questions related to investments or portfolio management/strategy.
