

Introduction

Alto Securities, LLC (“Alto Securities,” “we,” “our,” “us”) is registered with the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) as a broker-dealer and is a member of FINRA and SIPC. Brokerage and investment advisory services and fees differ, and it is important for you to understand these differences. Free and simple tools are available to research firms and financial professionals at Investor.gov/CRS, which also provides educational materials about broker-dealers, investment advisers, and investing.

Relationship and Services

What investment services and advice can you provide me?

Alto Securities markets and places private securities offerings on behalf of issuers, funds and/or their representatives to retail accredited and non-accredited investors. We are a limited purpose broker-dealer that offers investments in Reg D, Reg A, and Reg CF private offerings to retail customers via our website and directly to those customers with whom we have established relationships. Our investment offerings are limited to those on our website at any given time and those that we communicate directly to customers. We do not provide investment advice or traditional brokerage services to retail customers. We do not open accounts for investors; accordingly, we do not provide any account monitoring.

Investing in an offering can be accomplished through a self-directed IRA provided by our affiliated trust company, directly with the issuer or with a third-party willing to custody the investment. We do not have any minimum requirements to maintain a relationship with us; however, issuers and funds may have minimum investment requirements for you to participate in offerings. Lack of communication from Alto Securities regarding your investment should not be deemed investment advice to buy, sell, or hold an investment. We do not accept discretionary authority under any circumstances; as such, the ultimate decision whether to invest in a particular offering is yours.

Ask one of our financial professionals:

- Given my financial situation, should I choose a brokerage service? Why or why not?
- How will you choose investments to recommend to me?
- What is your relevant experience, including your licenses, education, and other qualifications? What do these qualifications mean?

Fees, Costs, Conflicts, and Standards of Conduct

What fees will I pay?

Alto Securities does not charge fees to retail customers. You may be required to pay fees in connection with opening and maintaining an IRA or other account with a qualified custodian that may be affiliated with Alto Securities to invest in and maintain the investments you choose. Additionally, you should carefully review the offering documents for any investment you consider, to understand the fees and costs associated with the investment, including investments offered by an affiliate of Alto Securities. These fees are separate from Alto Securities. We encourage you to read all fee disclosures provided by your custodian and contact your custodian for further information. You will pay fees and costs whether you make or lose money on your investments. Fees and costs will reduce any amount of money you make on your investments over time. Please make sure you understand what fees and costs you are paying.

Ask one of our financial professionals:

- Help me understand how fees and costs might affect my investments. If I invest $10,000, how much will go to fees and costs, and how much will be invested for me?

What are your legal obligations to me when providing recommendations? How else does your firm make money, and what conflicts of interest do you have?

We do not provide recommendations. The way we make money creates some conflicts with your interests. You should understand and ask us about these conflicts because they can affect the services we provide you. Here are some examples to help you understand what this means: When you invest in a private offering derived from our platform, including when you invest through one of our affiliates, we may be paid commissions from or participate in revenue sharing arrangements with issuers, funds and/or their sponsors offering the investments or through commission sharing arrangements with broker-dealers associated with such investments. This poses a conflict of interest, because we are incentivized to offer investments where such agreements exist; the more you invest, the more we are compensated by an investment sponsor or earn from a commission sharing arrangement with a broker-dealer. We also have a conflict of interest when an affiliate offers or manages a fund and/or is a fund. Such a fund or manager may charge fees in addition to the compensation we earn as a broker-dealer. Moreover, the compensation for each offering marketed or distributed by us may differ, which may result in higher compensation from some offerings compared to others. This is a conflict of interest because we are incentivized to focus on offerings with higher commission rates than ones with lower rates. For additional information, please call 1-629-276-4945 and request additional disclosures.

Ask one of our financial professionals:

- How might your conflicts of interest affect me, and how will you address them?

How do your financial professionals make money?

Financial professionals associated with Alto Securities are all employees of Alto Solutions, Inc., the parent company of Alto Securities. Our financial professionals are paid a salary by the parent company and eligible for incentive compensation. For those financial professionals who work with retail customers and who work with issuers and funds, their incentive compensation may take into account amounts invested in private securities by investors.
